

THREATEN DAUGHERTY WITH FEDERAL ACTION

MOVE MAY COME AS RETALIATION BY COMMITTEE

Follows Attempt of Attorney General to Halt Hearing.

Washington, May 3.—Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty was threatened today with institution of criminal proceedings before a Federal Grand Jury, as a retaliatory move for his effort to obtain an injunction halting the Wheeler-Brookhart committee's investigation of his administration in the department of justice.

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, requested the committee today to prepare a "partial report" on the evidence brought out against Daugherty at its public hearings. Brookhart proposed that this report be submitted to the senate with a request that Harlan Fiske Stone, the new attorney general, be instructed to lay the testimony before a federal grand jury here for the purpose of starting criminal action against Daugherty. A majority of the committee, which is dominated by the insurgent Republican-Democratic coalition, was said to favor this proceeding.

Under the Brookhart plan, the committee would strike back at Daugherty and his brother Mal S. Daugherty, who also obtained a temporary injunction stopping all efforts to investigate the records of his bank, the Midland National, at Washington Court House, Ohio.

SAFE CRACKER IS SOUGHT BY POLICE IN BOMB OUTRAGE

Cleveland, O., May 3.—Local detectives began a search today for a well known safe cracker, known to have had numerous "disputes" with members of various trade unions, in connection with the mysterious auto bombing here Wednesday night.

Joseph Nestor, 50, business agent for the sheet metal workers union, one of the occupants of the car, died of his injuries last night and William M. O'Brien, secretary of the union, in whose car the bomb was placed, is still in a serious condition from injuries received.

According to the police, after a search of the berillon records the job has all the earmarks of a certain "soup man's" work, and as he has not been seen in the city since the bombing occurred, the detectives are exerting every effort to find him.

Today twenty funerals are being held, bringing the total of funerals held to fifty.

Donahey, to institute a grand jury investigation into the affairs of the Municipal Savings and Loan Company, now in the hands of receivers, Attorney General C. C. Crabbe was in Cleveland today, going over a list of possible special counsel to direct the inquiry.

The Municipal Savings and Loan Company was closely allied with the Representative Realty Company and half a dozen other concerns interested in the construction of moderate priced homes, and hundreds of home owners, purchasing houses on land contracts, are interested in developments in the case.

WORLD FLIGHT COMMANDER IS STILL MISSING

Three Searching Parties Return Empty Handed

Cordova, Alaska, May 3.—Three searching parties from Chignik returned there today after an unsuccessful land search for Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the U. S. army round-the-world flight, missing since Wednesday.

Natives from Head Lagoon, near Chignik reported that the missing flier flew overland toward Bearing Sea in a direction that would take him over Chignik Lake. This was the first direct word that had been obtained concerning the missing birdman since he took the air at Chignik shortly after 11 o'clock Wednesday.

The searching parties from Chignik covered all the trail along Portage Bay from Chignik Lagoon to the heart of Kukulka Bay where they met a crew from one of the coast guard cutters, covered the coast line to the westward.

Another party proceeding up the river from Chignik Lagoon but was forced to turn back at the first lake on account of ice.

A gas boat which reconnoitered the coast line to the westward also returned today without having sighted the missing plane or obtained any trace of the two men who were aboard when it left Chignik.

WOMAN IS NAMED IN BARING CASE

MISS MILDRED E. DEAM

White Plains, N. Y., May 3.—Miss Mildred Deam, former Elizabeth, N. J. high school teacher who dropped from sight when her name was drawn into the sensational Baring germ poisoning case, will come forth soon—probably before the trial May 12, and tell the district attorney her side of the story.

Miss Deam is not trying to defy lawyers who are searching for her. She has desired to avoid publicity, but now that it appears inevitable, she is prepared to go through the ordeal of interrogation.

These were assurances given today to District Attorney Rowland by relatives of Miss Deam, who assert she is on the verge of a nervous breakdown as a result of the publicity she has received and is only delaying her visit to the district attorney until she is physically able to undergo the ordeal.

Miss Deam, is mentioned as the "woman in the case" in the alleged effort of Clarence O. Baring, New York representative of a Minneapolis heating firm, to poison his wealthy wife in their home at White Plains, N. Y.

PRESIDENT MUST ACT ON BONUS BILL WITHIN NEXT TEN DAYS

Washington, May 3.—The bonus came back to roost on the White House doorstep today. Passed by both houses of congress, by overwhelming majorities and assured of passage again, even over a presidential veto the long controversy bid fair this time to be settled once and for all.

The president will either have to sign it or veto it within ten days, else the measure becomes law automatically.

Opinion was badly divided today over the probable course of President Coolidge. Members of congress who have discussed the situation with him recently have gone away from the White House with directly conflicting views as to what he will do. Some expressed the view today that Mr. Coolidge, realizing the bill is subject to become law any way, eventually, will either sign it on the theory it is the cheapest bill obtainable from a treasury standpoint, or else will allow it to become law without signature, thus indicating a degree of disapproval. Others, were confident, that in view of his frequent and often repeated criticism of the bonus "in principle," the president would not hesitate to reject the measure and return it to congress with a strong message of outright disapproval.

Meanwhile, pressure for and against the measure began to beat against the White House doors today. Telegrams, letters and messages of all sorts poured into the president's office recommending a course of action.

Xenia's proposed park and swimming pool will be located on a site in the Dodds Addition if the property desired can be acquired, it was decided at a meeting of the Xenia Community Recreation Association in the commission chamber of City Hall Friday night.

As a result of the decision, the association decided to take steps to purchase nine acres of land adjacent to the prospective street known as Detroit Boulevard and near the location of the Kiwanis Club skating pond. The park will be developed there according to tentative plans already prepared, of which a prospective painting in colors was exhibited by John M. Davidson at Friday night's meeting.

The plans locate the proposed park, in territory bounded by the proposed Detroit Boulevard, and by a winding drive running east from the boulevard, according to the original plot filed by F. W. Dodds, developer of the tract. Near the eastern extremity of this drive, near where Cox Memorial Athletic Field is now located, a place would be provided for parking automobiles and a bugalow-style bath house will be erected.

Fifteen organizations were officials represented at the meeting Friday night, and representatives of five others telephoned they would not be present because of the senior class play. For that reason the new organization of the association was postponed until next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Organizations represented Friday night were the Jr. O. U. A. M. K. of C. Catholic Church, Social Service, American Legion both branches of the W. T. C. U. Greene County Medical Society, Garden Club, Pythian Sisters, Kiwanis, Rotary, K. of P. Redmen, Xenia Ministerial Association, Sunshine Society and the American Legion Auxiliary.

MAYOR OF CANTON AND SAFETY DIRECTOR OUT

FREE SEEDS NOW IN CLASS WITH CAMPAIGN CIGAR

Washington, May 3.—On the brink of a great national election the campaign cigar which in the past has brought so many votes, for the other fellow—today saw the writing on the wall.

The writing on the wall was in the form of a final death warrant for that other reliable old vote getter, the cucumber seed. It appeared certain today that the senate would not restore to the agricultural appropriations bill an amendment setting aside $360,000 for free seeds, just killed in the house.

Representative Ralph E. Lozier, of Missouri, supplied congress with some enlightening letters that made up the legislators' minds. The letters were from farm organizations, protesting an attempt to revive the ancient practice of senators and representatives comic valentines their constituents with horse radish and artichoke seeds that stayed under ground like the bottom of a well.

CHARGE IS MADE

London, May 3.—The Daily Express charged today that Premier Mussolini has flouted the League of Nations by summoning an international immigration conference.

These were assurances given today to District Attorney Rowland by relatives of Miss Deam, who assert she is on the verge of a nervous breakdown as a result of the publicity she has received and is only delaying her visit to the district attorney until she is physically able to undergo the ordeal.

STATUS OF SECRETARY HUGHES IS MATTER OF POLITICAL SURMISE

Washington, May 3.—The flat statement at the White House that President Coolidge is in favor of excluding Japanese—a scoundrelously as possible, but still excluding them—and the strong intimation that he will sign the new immigration bill containing the exclusion clause aroused considerable speculation here today as to the status of Secretary of State Hughes.

Outwardly, at least, the president and his secretary of state are thus disclosed to be on opposite sides of one of the most important questions of foreign policy that has come up in years.

Certainly it is the gravest foreign issue that has confronted Mr. Coolidge.

Both in writing and orally before committees of congress, Secretary Hughes has consistently opposed any legislation that would bar the Japanese. Even while the present immigration bill was being written in the house immigration committee, Mr. Hughes sent a letter to Chairman Johnson, urging that Japan be allowed a quota of immigration just as any other country whose nationals are eligible to citizenship.

He told members of congress that if they passed the exclusion act it would undo the work of twenty years careful diplomacy in the Far East and would utterly destroy the era of good feeling between this country and Japan that resulted from the Washington arms conference. His opposition to exclusion was strong and unqualified from the start.

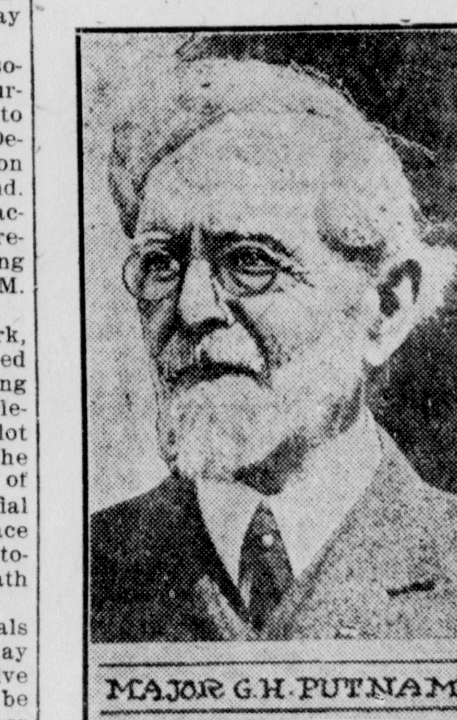

President Zayas' decision was the result of his desire to have the movement quelled at the earliest possible moment.

CURTIS REMOVED BY DONAHEY AS HEARING ENDED

Governor Takes Action After Reviewing the Evidence

Columbus, O., May 3.—Governor Donahey today removed Mayor C. C. Curtis, and his brother, Safety Director E. E. Curtis, of Canton, for misfeasance and malfeasance in office.

"The evidence clearly shows that C. C. Curtis, as mayor, made no serious effort to enforce the liquor laws in Canton," Governor Donahey said in a formal statement.

Governor Donahey urged that "a thorough grand jury investigation should be brought about."

"The situation fairly reeks with conspiracy, protection and bribery," the governor said. "Disregarding the disputed evidence the facts admitted by both sides reveal conditions that are intolerable in city government. In justice to the citizens of Canton and for the promotion of honest law enforcement, a thorough grand jury investigation should be brought about."

These were assurances given today to District Attorney Rowland by relatives of Miss Deam, who assert she is on the verge of a nervous breakdown as a result of the publicity she has received and is only delaying her visit to the district attorney until she is physically able to undergo the ordeal.

CLASSES TO BU BLINDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

The class of 1924 of Central High School will combine its class funds with those of the class of 1925 in the purchase of blinds for the Jean B. Elwell Auditorium of Central High School as a combined memorial from these classes.

Miss Henrietta Monroe, of the class of 1924, made this announcement in her well-rendered memorial presentation preceding the second night's performance of the class play, "The Boomerang," given in the auditorium Friday night. Both classes will be given credit for the memorial.

The presentation of the play itself by an exceedingly well chosen cast, might be said to be one of the best class night performances ever given here. The cast seemed to be welded together into a well-oiled piece of machinery, that entered into sympathy with Booth Tarkington's stage story, and lived, rather than acted, the parts.

There is a common fault of amateurs to stilted speech as if they were reciting their lines in the manner of the first-grade youth who does his first elocution concerning the boy on the ship in which the conflagration has burst out. This was lacking in this year's class night performance; as a result the characterization may be said to have raised the standard of amateur performances to a plane that would satisfy the most easily bored.

Character youths that were done exceptionally well were those of David Doggett, Miss Dorothy Hickman, Tom Conklin, Miss Florence Chew, Miss Louise Barnett, David Bryson and Robert Owens. Tribute to the success attained by Miss Jean B. Elwell in the direction of the piece was given in the presentation by the class of a bouquet of flowers to her, another to Miss Hickman, the lead and another to Miss Marie Welser, class advisor, between acts.

MODISH MITZI—Mitzi's Own Recipe For Jabot-Making

Mitzi has her own recipes for style. Polly thinks she uses dark magic. But Mitzi is explaining to her that all she uses is a few handkerchiefs and a needle and thread. The jabot she wears, for instance—the collar is made of one handkerchief and three others form the jabot.

For the high collared dress the long draped jabot is most stylish. This too, is made by using a very large handkerchief of silk or, if you prefer, a printed crepe de chine. "It's just a matter of folds," murmurs Mitzi.

"Nothing to it but one pleat after another," says Mitzi of this jabot. Polly knows better. There's more to it than pleats—there's style. Especially in the initial tab at the bottom. The jabot is of linen, but it might be of crepe de chine.

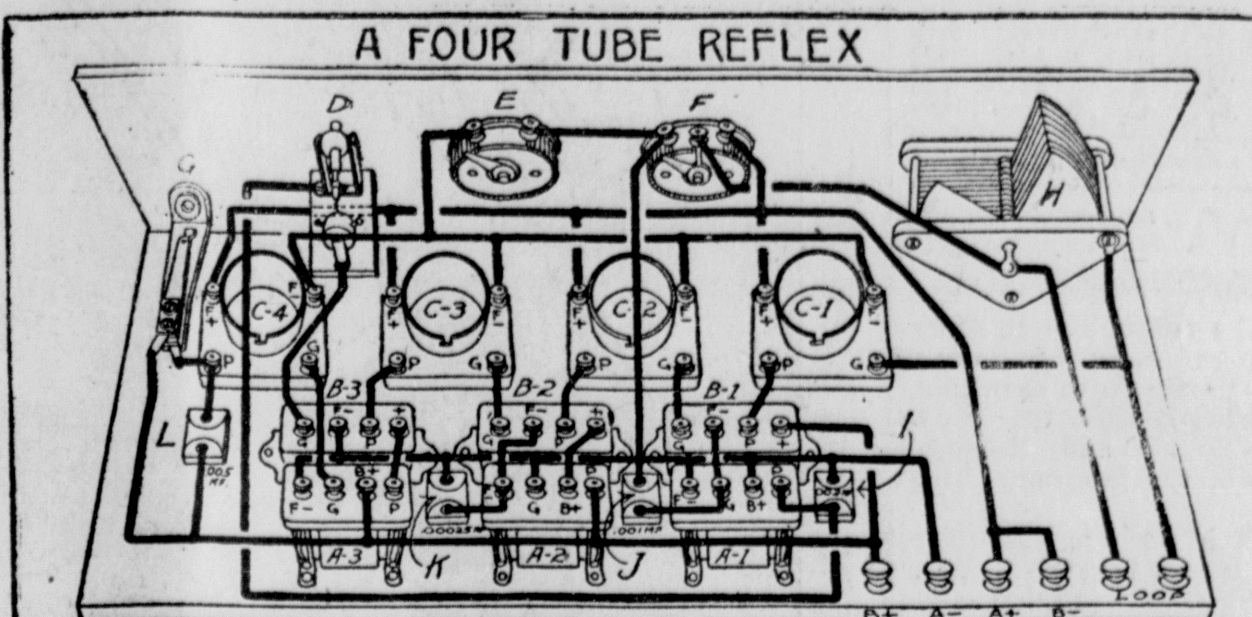

Polly goes home with a firm resolve. She will make use of her decorative handkerchiefs. She will follow Mitzi's directions exactly. She will make jabots that are exactly the same. Only of course, they will be different. Just as different as different handkerchiefs can make them.

Reflex receivers are daily becoming more and more popular with broadcast listeners and not without good reason. The fact that vacuum tubes in a reflex circuit act as both radio and audio frequency amplifiers is alone sufficient to urge many to join the ranks of the reflex fans. A much greater overall efficiency can be secured with the same number of tubes in a straight audio or radio frequency circuit. The crystal detector insures clear, undistorted signals.

Reflex receivers, when properly operated, (and they must be in order to hear anything understandable), will not radiate energy from the antenna and thus cause interference with nearby receiving sets. Any type of receiver that will not cause a further action to the chorus of squeals that now fill the air is to be encouraged and should be your choice when building a new receiver.

Reflex Principle
The first principle upon which a reflex type of receiver operates is that the vacuum tube acts first as an amplifier for the radio frequency currents as they come from the aerial. The current is further amplified by the second and third vacuum tubes and then furnished to the crystal detector. The crystal rectifies and changes the current from radio frequency to audio frequency and it is then sent through the second, third and fourth tubes. The time the current is amplified by the same tubes at a different frequency. The first tube handles the current at radio frequency only and the fourth tube acts as an audio amplifier only.

In this manner the current is amplified with three stages or radio and three stages of audio frequency, an accomplishment that would require six tubes if the currents were amplified in the regular manner.

Loop Used
The circuit as shown in the diagram is for use with a loop aerial and will not operate satisfactorily on an aerial without an additional coupling and tuning device. The use of a loop will greatly sharpen tuning and enable you to cut out a great deal of interference.

Either the flat top or spiral type of loop will operate with this circuit. You should have very good results with a loop constructed of two cross pieces each 29 inches in length, with nine strands of wire wound with half inch spacing in a spiral form. The sides of this loop will be about eighteen inches.

For best results wind your loop with number eighteen stranded wire or woven copper braid. If you are not troubled with interference the loop can consist of several turns of wire placed in the form of a loop with the two ends connected to the input terminals of the receiver.

Parts Needed

To construct the four tube receiver you will need the following apparatus:
Four tube sockets.
Three radio frequency transformers.
Three audio frequency transformers of a five or six to one ratio.
One six ohm rheostat.
One 200 or 400 ohm potentiometer.
One crystal detector, either fixed or adjustable.
2.00025 M. F. fixed mica condensers.
1.002 M. F. fixed mica condensers.
1.005 M. F. fixed mica condensers.
10 feet of number fourteen tinned copper wire for connections.
6 binding posts, screws, solder and flux.

The whole receiver can be readily installed on a 7x24 inch panel and a baseboard 10x24. The baseboard must be a little deeper than is necessary for the ordinary type of receiver as much more apparatus must be assembled behind the panel.

Buy Good Apparatus

Secure the best quality of apparatus for your receiver. If you want results for the money you are going to invest in your receiver do not attempt to economize by sacrificing quality for price. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link. The radio receiver will be no more efficient than its poorest part. In buying your transformers buy them all of the same manufacturer so that they will have like characteristics and will function together in the circuit. The crystal is called on to pass rather heavy currents in the reflex set and for this reason try to secure one that will be fairly stable in adjustment and will rectify large currents without burning out.

MACDONALD'S ROAD TOWARD PEACE

General Dawes and his fellow reparations experts from America are back from Europe, bearing with them the consciousness of a great work greatly done. They are able to meet with compelling logic the few objections raised in America against the Dawes plan. These three Americans—Dawes, Young and Robinson—foresee no obstacles to the acceptance of the program. They feel it will soon be in operation.

Behind them, across the Atlantic, they left a happy situation. At no time since the armistice has there been a happier time for the Entente or the hope of a fairer day for all of Europe. Thanks to a change, not so much of heart as of government in Great Britain, Frenchmen and Englishmen are nearer to seeing eye-to-eye than at any time in five tedious and troubled years.

Great Britain, having come to the crossroads of decision, is minded to take the right turning. There can be little doubt; of this since the speeches of Prime Minister MacDonald at York last week and on Sunday at Port Talbot, Wales. The British Prime Minister repeatedly has gone on record as favoring the Dawes report as the way out of the reparations jungle. With the passing of every day since the submission of the report, its support by the Labor Government has become stronger.

The road MacDonald has taken is not the road of Lloyd George, Bonar Law, or Stanley Baldwin. Nor is the road of Curzon. These roads all were carrying England toward isolation from the continent. They would have made her only friend the discredited German state.

The dangerously mistaken and selfish policies emanating from Downing Street were forcing France to seek alliances in Eastern Europe. They were hardening the French will to make the eagles of France supreme in the air and her regimental tri-colors dominant on the Continent. They were driving Italy, uneasily watching from her narrow peninsula the shifting of forces in the Mediterranean, to seek strange, even unnatural, alliances.

The MacDonald road lies in the direction of an accord with France and the recognition of the French position that the logic of centuries has justified. That road will do more than make easy the way to reparations settlement. It stretches on and out toward an era of European tranquility. MacDonald holds the Dawes' report to be an opportunity for peace, which, if not taken by European statesmen, will be one of the most God-sent opportunities ever neglected and lost.

Nor is there any echo of the Downing Street of the last five years in his pronouncement:

"So far as I am concerned, I am not going to lose a single chance of putting the reports into operation if I can help it, and I want France to be with us. Some of our papers are talking about France being isolated. That is the very last thing I want. I do not want them to be isolated. I want M. Poincaré to know that France, so far as her security is concerned, has no better friend than this country."

These are strong words. They will be so recognized in Berlin, in Paris and in Rome, and they are words of wisdom. They are not a bid made to France but an offer of support to France. So long as Great Britain and France move shoulder to shoulder, European peace is certain. So long as France is secure, peace will endure. Together these nations are the best guarantee of European quiet. Divided, they may be as dangerous as capped dynamite with a burning fuse.

Ramsay MacDonald has come to his chance. It is such an opportunity a may come to a great statesman once in a long lifetime. The settlement of reparations is in his hands. If he moves with France and supports her where justice demands she be supported, the thing is as good as done.

For Curzon has gone his faded way. Lloyd George sits by the side of the road watching the pageant go by. It is not probable that any spasm of disgruntled Liberalism will be able to rob MacDonald of enough Liberal support to break the Labor Government's back when a genuine and just settlement is in sight.

In this MacDonald has taken his right turning. His is the part of wisdom, and all those who believe in justice to victor as well as vanquished will hope that he may march on without the shadow of a turning.—Public Ledger.

GERMANY SEES THE LIGHT

It is good news to learn by the cable that the German Government has frankly expressed its approval of the report of the experts on the reparations problem. It even goes so far as to assure its hearty co-operation in carrying out the program, which has already been approved by Great Britain and France, and unofficially by the United States. There will, of course, be further discussion as to the working details; but the main point is that the Dawes plan has been accepted, and unless unforeseen obstacles arise, will be applied in good faith. On the whole, the outlook for the solution of the big problem, which has been the principal obstacle in the way of world peace, is a promising one.

General Dawes and his colleagues, before leaving Paris, were apprehensive that the German elections might become a source of trouble, and that the reparations question would be made one of the chief causes. The German acceptance, however, may clear the atmosphere of that possibility. The truth is that Germany, having begun to see more clearly the way out of her troubles, is now disposed to put the matter to the test fully and fairly. In pledging her co-operation, she has spoken in terms that can not be misunderstood, and which let us hope, she is resolved to carry out in good faith.

SPINACH

Oh, the good old days of boyhood, they are gone forever more, With their laughter and their shouting and the gang about the door; Now the games we played are over and the old school house is down, And the years have built a city where there used to be a town, But last night I caught a vision of a dining table neat And a heaping dish of spinach which the mother made us eat.

Now I hold no love for spinach. In the days of long ago And their endless round of pleasures, there was that one touch of woe, Just one bluish to the laughter which I would not live again, Could I turn away from manhood and escape its care and pain; Though I'd like to be a youngster, I'd not willingly repeat That springtime dish of spinach which the mother made us eat. Well I know that it's a tonic, I've been told it is oft enough, And a very wholesome diet, but I never liked the stuff. And I used to squirm and sputter and the smile would leave my face Every time I saw my mother putting spinach at my place, All in vain were my excuses, I could never leave my seat 'Till I'd finished up that spinach which the mother made me eat.

Now I hear his mother saying just what mother said to me: "You must eat your dish of spinach if a strong boy you would be," And hear him argue with her, and I chuckle soft and low As he mumbles and he grumbles just as I did long ago; And say unto his mother, as her pleading eyes I meet: "You can lead a boy to spinach, but it's hard to make him eat."

With the coming of summer I know, from past experience, that I shall receive many letters asking for help in removing perspiration stains. This is the most difficult stain to overcome. Indeed, unless it is on white goods, it is often impossible to remove it satisfactorily for the reason that acids which would take out perspiration marks would also take out color.

The perspiration of the underarms is alkaline, while that of other parts of the body—as the hands, arms, throat and shoulders—is acid. Therefore a different treatment is needed for these two kinds of perspiration stain.

Underarm Stains on White Goods:

Dip the stained portion of the garment into a weak solution of muriatic acid (poison), then dip it in clear hot water, followed by rinsing in water containing a little ammonia. Repeat this treatment several times if necessary, rather than leave the fabric in the acid bath till the stain is entirely bleached.

Underarm Stains on Colored Goods:

Acid Perspiration Stains: As explained above, this term covers all perspiration stains except those from the underarm. They are removed by alkaline applications, as follows: wet with suds of borax soap and place the garment in the sun. Or sponge with strong borax water. This method is harmless to white goods, but it is best to experiment on a small sample of colored goods before attempting it on a garment of similar colored fabric.

White Goods Yellowed by Perspiration Stains:

White cotton or linen goods stained by either the alkaline or the acid stains may be bleached successfully by the use of Javelle water (buy it at a drugstore and follow directions on the bottle). Or they may be bleached with potassium Permanganate as follows: Dissolve one teaspoon of permanganate crystals (a poison) in one pint of water. Wring the fabric out of clear water, then immerse it in this acid solution. In taking out the stain a purplish-brown color is left on the fabric, but this is removed by dipping the material into plain dilute oxalic acid and, when the brown color is gone, rinsing in clear water which contains a tablespoon of ammonia to the quart.

ON WRITING A LETTER

I have just been reading a book of remarkable letters. They seem to bring to me the life and soul of the writer as nothing else could. Letters are the intimate touch of one mind with another mind that is sympathetic.

Prof. William Hale, of the Ohio State University will give a lecture and demonstration at Antioch College at 7:45 o'clock, Monday afternoon, under the auspices of the Science Club.

LOGAN COUNTY IS ON FAST TIME

Not only Bellefontaine but Logan County went on daylight savings time Thursday afternoon.

The City Council voted in favor of the advanced time recently, and Thursday afternoon county commissioners agreed to move the town clock in the Court House up to agree with the daylight schedule. They also put up in Hamilton County were them Court House offices on the new time.

Court House clocks and other time pieces governed by the county commissioners in Hamilton County were moved up when Cincinnati began operation on the daylight saving time recently. Continued agitation in favor of daylight time is expected to result in a change to new time here soon.

When you read the letters of a great man you come to know him as he is. And you know him off parade with none of his advertised clothes on his back. You see him as he is to himself when he is most great.

A letter should never be written hurriedly—or just so you can say you have written a letter.

For next to your actual presence to the one to whom you write, is the letter you send.

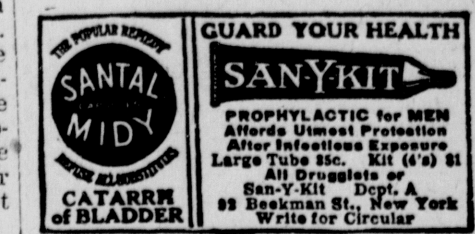

And how full of power is the right letter! It can lift and inspire and sympathize. It can bring sunshine and beauty where before there was only drabness and gray skies.

It is wonderful to get letters from those who are known and dear to you, but there is something very thrilling and helpful about getting letters from those whom you have never met or known but who have felt the need of sending a message your way.

I have had many a thrill from receiving a letter from some idol of my boy days—some famous man, perhaps, who acknowledged a word of admiration which I had sent to him.

Everybody likes to get the surprise letter—the letter from some friend or loved one long absent or silent. How such a letter brightens an entire day. The letters of a business house are its messengers. The letter you send to your friend is your spirit sent, sent to him clothed in the words of your heart.

Letters make this world a very much happier place in which to live.

XENIA PATROLMAN'S SUSPENSION MADE PERMANENT FRIDAY

Suspension of H. T. Confer, patrolman in the Police Department by City Manager S. O. Hale, was made permanent by the City Commission when it rendered a decision late Friday afternoon sustaining three of five charges filed against the officer on which he was given a public hearing Thursday night.

A lengthy opinion, going into each one of the charges and the evidence introduced at the commission hearing Thursday night, was prepared and read at the meeting by Judge H. L. Smith, president of the commission, and unanimously adopted by the commission by vote. Only a few people were present to hear the decision.

The commission sustained charges of incompetency, conduct unbecoming an officer and insubordinating and did not sustain the charges of failure to obey orders, or of stirring up strife and discord in the police department, which were included in the list of five charges made against Confer with the commission by City Manager Hale April 22.

The decision automatically removes the suspended policeman permanently as a member of the Xenia Police Department, and makes an appointment to fill the vacancy necessary.

A civil service examination of candidates for the vacancy will probably be held soon. In the meantime Confer may appeal from the decision of the commission to the Civil Service Commission, of which W. L. Miller, T. J. Kennedy and Ed Wood are members. If the suspended patrolman appeals from the decision the appeal must be heard by the commission within ten days. He was not in the commission chamber when the decision was rendered Friday afternoon.

TELLS WHETHER DRIVER IS DRUNK.

A modern scientific device to determine whether automobile drivers are drunk has been completed by Dr. O. W. Ginsberg as an aid to the San Francisco police crusade against mad driving that has cost a score of lives in the past few weeks. The machine will show the amount of liquor a man has consumed, and exactly the degree of his intoxication at the time of his arrest. Those joining in the test are, left to right, Drs. O. W. Ginsberg, Walter E. Smith, Frank H. Cookingham, Ethen H. Smith, Frank A. Lowe and, on couch, R. Cadwallader.

FINED IN COURT

William Leahy, arrested by Patrolmen Thompson and Spencer Friday night on a charge of drunk, was fined $10 and costs by Judge E. D. Smith in Police Court Saturday morning.

WOMAN DRIVING JEWETT CREATES STIR IN THE EAST

Xenia who drove a Packard touring car through the East last summer, remarked that although his car was rated as a hill climber, he found one slope along the seaboard that he was required to ascend in second speed.

Much to his amazement, however, a woman driving a Jewett sport model touring, negotiated the hill on high, passing other machines struggling in low or intermediate speeds, while the natives ran out to watch the performance with awe.

People living in the neighborhood said the woman created just such a sensation with her Jewett model two or three times a week, by taking one of the steepest hills in that section without shifting out of high gear. The performance is a remarkable tribute to the power of the Paige built Jewett car, handled in Greene County by The Carroll-Binder Company, East Main Street, Xenia.

It is the kind of power that these dealers have been talking about in their advertisements for some time, but which promises so much in the way of accomplishment that even experienced motor drivers can hardly believe the truth until they see the Jewett in action. The Jewett engine however has been the talk of the motor world since its conception by Paige engineers and its introduction to the market.

The car however, is built to take care of all the speed or power the engine can generate. The touring model weighs 2,805 pounds, including a heavier and stronger rear axle, a heavier and stronger universal joints to go with the heavier and stronger motor.

That is why engineers say the Jewett Six is sturdier and longer-lived than lighter cars, for while it is powered high and heavy, it meets all demands from the engine with proportional construction throughout. Comparative weights should convince the buyer whether the car is powered too great for its construction or whether it will stand up under driving weather, bad roads and fast traveling.

Many cars are built that way—with the engine as the talking point, but with enough power under the hood to run the rest of the machine into a fit subject for the junk yard in not so very long time. Jewett construction was designed to proportionately handle all the power the big engine can muster, and as a result it is still a good turn-over proposition when the newness has worn off and the owner wishes to trade or sell it—and buy a new Jewett.

The Carroll-Binder Company is making a feature of the Jewett as a medium-priced car with all the desired advantages this spring, and in anticipation of the demand that has already been felt, has stocked to show all models. The company turns out a touring job for $1,065 and from that the prices range upward for the brougham, sedan, coupe, De Luxe touring and De Luxe sedan. A six in that classification, and one that will pick up its ears and go out and get you somewhere, is worthy of consideration.

BUICK SEDAN IS COMBINATION CAR

Both in its general proportions and in its minute details, the big seven-passenger Buick sedan establishes itself as a truly distinctive closed car. The strength and sturdiness of its seventy horse power Buick valve-in-head engine with a speed that is rated at from sixty to seventy miles an hour are reflected in the long, low body lines.

The interior reveals the same generous proportions and the same distinctive appearance, with its plush upholstery and wide, comfortable, extra seats.

Open car freedom is afforded by the adjustable windows both in the doors and in the sides. Every other detail contributes its share to the comfort of driver and passengers.

The new windshield is perfectly weather-tight. The ventilator is flush with the shroud and operated by a push lever. It has an air deflector to insure complete ventilation without discomfort.

A sunshade, a new instrument panel, nickel-plated radiator shell, and aluminum trimmings on the running boards are other factors that increase this car's high standard of value. And there is, of course, the additional sense of security given by the new Buick four-wheel brakes which is one of the big features that should cause you to decide in its favor.

INJURED WHILE AT WORK

Mr. Ernest Jackson of Walnut Street, has been confined to his home since last Monday suffering from severe injuries while at work in the R. A. Kelly Cordage Company. He was cut and bruised about the head and back. Bones were broken in the right wrist and shoulder, when a piece of machine broke. He is doing as well as could be expected. Mr. Jackson is employed in the rope department.

THREE WHEELS, BUT THAT'S ENOUGH TO DRIVE STAR CAR

Dickman and Johnston, Xenia agents for the Durant, Star and new Flint automobiles in Greene County, pulled a stunt several days ago with a Star stock touring that had the natives sitting up and taking notice.

The dealers, in order to convince the car buying public that the Star, although cheap in price, is a well-balanced product, took off one of the front wheels, and then had the machine driven over the streets on three wheels.

During the exhibition there was a driver in the front seat and two passengers in the rear seat, who rode as comfortable as if all four wheels were tucked under the tidy little body. The trick was new to the automotive field around here, and had the desired effect of impressing upon its watchers, that a car so constructed must have something to it besides a high-up name.

The Star is only an introductory job for the Dickman-Johnston line, for even the classy little star can be eclipsed by its powerful big brother, the Durant and its smart-appearing and altogether satisfactory uncle, the Flint Six. Reaching out in this fashion the local concern not only has a car-range but a price range that meets all emergencies as well as all pocketbooks.

The Durant is well and favorably known here, and for that reason perhaps the crack new Flint Six has been creating most of the interest. Every body wants to take a look at this new product, and try to find out how so much car satisfaction and apparent class, can be tied up together and handed over the counter at the price limitation at which it is disposed.

With these three cars as leaders, the Dickman and Johnston Company has been stepping out in car class in this section, making car buyers come and see before they invest their savings in automobiles.

When you are planning on building a house it often happens that the bids you receive run considerably higher than you had anticipated. In such case several courses of action are open:

1. You may get new bids from other contractors. But care should be taken to deal only with responsible builders. A careless and irresponsible builder may bid low, but he is expensive in the end and most unsatisfactory.
2. You may change your plans, choosing smaller rooms and less expensive finishings. A certain amount of this sort of cutting may prove to be both wise and successful.
3. You may postpone the finishing of certain parts of the house. Oftentimes a room that is ultimately needed may be left unfinished for the present. The purchase of some of the fixtures may be postponed. Or the house may be so planned that one unit may be built now and a second unit added later.

COWS OF GREENE COUNTY AVERAGE 3380 POUNDS MILK

Ohio's average dairy cow produces about 3600 pounds, or 1700 quarts, of milk a year, hardly enough to allow a profit, in the belief of rural economists at the Ohio State University.

Greene County's dairy cows average 3380 pounds a year. Heading the list of Ohio counties is Fulton with an average production per cow of 5418 pounds of milk in a year.

Geauga County, with 5091 pounds, and Lorain, with 4945 pounds of milk per cow per year, are the only other Ohio counties that near the 5000-pound mark. At the other end of the list are Putnam, Ross, Madison, and Fairfield Counties, all with less than 2800 pounds average production per cow.

This wide variation, say the economists, is due largely to differences in feeding, care and breeding. A good many herds in all these counties are producing more than 10,000 pounds of milk a year. Cost studies have shown that milk is produced at $1 per 100 pounds less in herds averaging over 7000 pounds, than in those averaging less than 6000 pounds per cow.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL TO BE HELD IN JUNE

A Daily Vacation Bible School is assured for Xenia this summer. The Rev. William H. Tilford and the Rev. J. P. Lytle are the committee from the Ministerial Association in charge of the work. The schools have signified a willingness to permit the use of McKinley School Building for the Bible School during the month of June. Last year the school was well attended and good work accomplished. It is planned this year to add new features, which will make the school more effective. "The teaching of the Bible is an important work for the entire city," according to one of the ministers. "We cannot do too much for the young people to ground them in the age old divine principles of life as contained in the Old and New Testaments of the Word of God." The children will meet every morning and learn some of the prayers of scripture to take part in an opening exercise, and memory verses. There will be a habit talk concerning life's relationships. Classes will then assemble graded according to age, in charge of competently trained teachers, who will have hand work and dramatize the Bible stories. The School probably will run between three and four weeks. These weeks will be filled with fun as well as instruction. At the close of the term there will be a pageant given at some convenient place for the general public. The cost of the school is taken care of by the offerings as received at the evening union services during the summer months. Any one desiring to assist in the school can communicate with the Rev. William H. Tilford.

WILBERFORCE MAY BE MADE BISHOP

The young men of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity, gave a "Send Off" to President John A. Gregg, Thursday at their new home. President Gregg is a candidate for one of the new bishops to be elected at the General Conference of the A. M. E. Church which will convene in Louisville, Ky., Monday, May 5. Mr. Julius A. Graham, presiding, made the opening address and was followed by other men of the fraternity. Prof. Charles Smith and Prof. F. A. McGinnis, spoke, both reviewing the work of president Gregg during his four years' service as president of the institution and assured him that the citizens and student body were interested in his election. President Gregg delivered a response which was touching, and returned thanks to the young men for the splendid "Send Off" given him and for all the good wishes for his elevation to the highest gift within the church.

Bishop J. H. Jones, Dean Geo. F. Woodson, Prof. Charles Johnson, President John A. Gregg, Dean Gilbert H. Jones and others leave Saturday to attend the opening of the General Conference in Louisville, Ky. About seven hundred delegates will be present from all parts of the country, from the west coast and southern part of Africa, and the islands of the sea. The conference will last about three weeks. During the second week new bishops will be elected, the general officers and editors of the several church papers. Should president Gregg be elected one of the bishops of the church a new president will be selected when the trustee board meets during commencement week which will be the third Thursday in June.

Mr. Williamson, Cleveland, Ohio, visited his aunt, Miss Anna O. H. Williamson last week. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Smith were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Morris in Dayton, Sunday.

Mr. Ernest House, Freshmen, College Department, who was ill with pneumonia and taken to Tawawa Hospital, was removed to his home in Springfield last week. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hughes, accompanied by Mr. Hughes' father and a nephew, motored to Cincinnati Sunday and visited friends.

Mrs. M. E. Carter, for many years matron of Arnett Hall, on account of health resigned some years ago, now residing in Springfield, visited a few of her old friends last week.

Mr. Alvin Foster, graduate of the college department, and for several years associated with the Y. M. C. A. work in Columbus, now Secretary of the Community Chest Department in Canton, Ohio, called on his many friends Friday and Saturday. Mr. Foster attended the State Conference for Social Workers held in Dayton on the 25th, 26th and 27th of April.

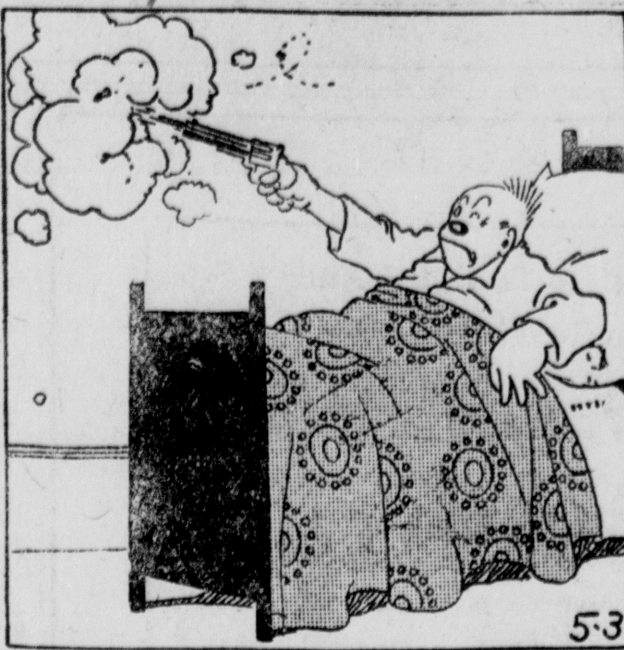

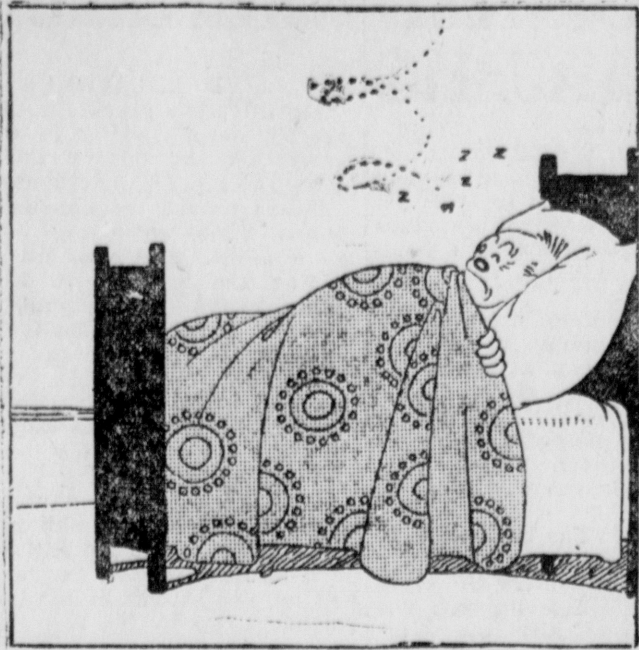

Miss Hallie Q. Brown returned from an extended trip in southern California last week. After spending a few days at Homewood Cottage, she left for Pittsburgh to conduct a campaign to complete a fund of $50,000.00 for a scholarship for young women who desire to complete their education in the higher schools of learning. Miss Brown, as president of the National Federation of Colored Women started this movement early last year and has already raised half of the amount. She will conduct another campaign for the movement in New Haven, Connecticut, the first week in May.

OBSERVE SCIENCE DAY Tuesday was set aside by the Academic Science Club of Wilberforce University as a day for the observation of "The Benefits of Science to Civilization and the Contribution of the Negro."

At the chapel hour the club presented a program which was of credit to the university. The outstanding feature of the program was a paper by Mr. Porter Streeter on "The Benefit of Science to Civilization and the Contribution of the Negro." At the close of the program Mr. Daniel Owings presented $100 to the president of the university toward the furnishing of a science class room in New Shorter Hall. The stage was beautifully decorated with green plants and placards. President Gregg congratulated the club highly on the work it is doing and complimented the members on being wide awake.

The officers of the club are as follows: Mr. Daniel Owings, president; Miss Thelma Garvin, secretary; Miss Tressie Clarke, instructor of science in the academic department, treasurer and sponsor. "FROCK DAY" CELEBRATED Thursday morning bright and early, the would-be seniors, men and women,

BRINGING UP FATHER

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

DUNCAN HALE, a young army officer, returns from the Philippines to find that SUZANNE, with whom he is in love, has married GEOFFREY ATWOOD, a prominent man much older than she. Hale tries to persuade her to leave her husband, get a divorce and marry him, feeling sure that she still cares for him. Suzanne is troubled by this, and by the report that there is a love affair between DICK LEIGH, Geoffrey's nephew, and a chorus girl. LINDA VALE, Atwood's secretary, introduces herself to Suzanne, and makes a determined effort to interfere between husband and wife. At Dick's request, Suzanne gives a little party for the chorus girl, LOLITA. Mrs. Vale manages to be asked.

be alone. She tried not to think about Geoffrey and Mrs. Vale, but her thoughts refused to leave them. She kept going back to Mrs. Vale's telephone call of the morning—certainly she had said that Geoff would not be home until the next day. And certainly he had been lunching with her that noon. She did not feel angry, but she could not help feeling hurt. "I won't say anything to him about it," she told herself. "I'll just wait, and let him explain—of course he will explain."

The moment she entered the house she asked if there had been any telephone calls; she felt sure that Geoffrey would have telephoned her by that time; of course, it was quite simple. He probably had tried to reach her by phone as soon as he got into town, and failing, had thought he would reach her later. Why, perhaps he had wanted her to lunch with him, and had been disappointed that she was not at home to receive his message.

And why shouldn't he lunch with his secretary, after all? They must have had a great many things to talk over, and Geoff could not afford to waste his luncheon hour; why shouldn't he take Mrs. Vale to luncheon and talk business with her then? "That's all right—but they needn't have picked out a restaurant that was miles from the office," a still, small voice reminded her. "And they certainly didn't look as if they were talking business; they seemed to be just having a good time."

The afternoon dragged itself along, and there was no word from Geoffrey. "He's going to come in unexpectedly tonight and surprise me," she told herself, and tried to be content with that. Once she went to the telephone, thinking that she would call him, and turned away at the last moment, forbidden by her pride.

Suddenly it seemed to her that she could not wait any longer for something to happen, and put on her wraps, intending to take a walk. But she had barely reached the front door when Mrs. Haynes' maid appeared. Suzanne drew back instinctively, thinking only of Mrs. Haynes' last meeting with her. She had offended the older woman; why should Mrs. Haynes come to her now? "My dear, I want to talk to you," Mrs. Haynes exclaimed. "I want to give you some advice. You may not like it, but I feel that I ought to give it to you, whether you want it or not."

Suzanne meekly escorted her into the living room and sat down. Evidently this was to be a day of many troubles for her. "I heard from Anne Graham of what happened this noon," Mrs. Haynes went on. "That is, of your going to luncheon with her, and seeing your husband and his secretary there, when you thought he was out of town. Now, my dear, don't let this upset you; just be on your guard. That same secretary is a very clever woman; I've known Linda Vale ever since she went to work for Geoff—she has tried very hard to land him, and she was furious when he married you. She won't give up; she'll always try to oust you and get your place, if she can."

"Don't trust her. And don't let her annoy you," Geoffrey is a very smart man, and I don't believe any man could get around him; but a woman like Linda Vale can do things a man can't. I know, because I've seen it happen in my own family. In these days the wife at home is at a dreadful disadvantage; her husband has what amounts to an other wife, in his office, if he has a clever, attractive woman for his secretary. She can make herself indispensable to him. My husband had just such a secretary!

"Now, my dear, Geoff is in love with you; he's not in love with Linda Vale. But you've got to watch her, nevertheless. Don't let her make you jealous; don't let her annoy you; just watch her, and beat her at her own game. When you married Geoff, you married a man whom women had been pursuing for years, and now you've got to hold him."

Tomorrow—A Decisive Step.

SENATE SPENDING $325,000 IN PROBE

Washington, May 2.—The high cost of senatorial investigations was revealed to the senate today by Senator Warren, chairman of the appropriation committee, who estimated the senate is spending $325,000 on the probes now in progress.

"The least any committee has spent," said Warren, "is $4,000 and the Teapot Dome inquiry has cost $56,000."

Warren's inventory was supplied after the senate had appropriated $100,000 for investigation costs.

McClelland Neighborhood

The picnic supper of McPherson school was held at Glad Community hall Wednesday evening. A bountiful feast was spread after which the time was spent in an informal social time. Miss Evans will attend normal next year, she has given excellent satisfaction and we regret that she will not be here for the coming term. Teachers for Spring Valley Township have not been appointed.

The Hess stock sale on Wednesday drew a good crowd and the cattle brought very satisfactory prices. Twenty-one head were sold. Receipts of sale were sixteen hundred dollars.

The McClelland W. C. T. U. furnished lunch for the sale. Plowing is almost finished in this neighborhood, one farmer has about fifty acres of April planted corn, can you beat that? Fruit trees a glory of bloom and with gardens coming on apace, the farmer feels that he is a large part of the industrial world. Here's hoping that he will get prices this year to encourage him to stay in the game.

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas.—"Words cannot express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headache, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine."—Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. Marshal Street, Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.
